MEMORANDUM FOR THE HONORABLE JAMES R. SCHLESINGER

SUBJECT: Implementation of President's New Management Emphasis

In the President's memorandum of April 18, 1973, he requested that you identify the major objectives of the Intelligence Community. In turn he has asked the Office of Management and Budget to assist him in carrying out this new approach.

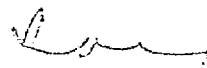

In our meeting on April 11, we discussed in general how this new approach should be implemented in the Intelligence Community. I understand that Associate Director Dolph Bridgewater plans to meet with [REDACTED] Jack Martin, General Allen, and General Graham Thursday, and that you have made excellent progress toward establishing objectives.

STAT

I should like to emphasize two points which we discussed. First, as the President has requested, it is important that you select objectives which relate to the entire Intelligence Community, in your capacity as Director of Central Intelligence. Second, the objectives selected should clearly be of Presidential significance.

Dolph Bridgewater, Jim Frey, and Arnie Donahue will be available to work with you and others in your organization to assist in the preparation of objectives. In view of the extensive thought already directed to your objectives, and the urgency you attach to this process, the May 14 date specified by the President appears reasonable and provides a useful discipline. As we discussed last week, we can work out a process for reviewing progress in the achievement of objectives in the context of the draft objectives which are being prepared.

I look forward to meeting with you in the near future.

Roy L. Ash
